

ALEXANDRIA VA.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1870.

EUROPEAN AFFAIRS.—The Baltimore American, in its summary of the Foreign News says: "Despatches from London confirm the previous reports of a French victory at Bagnaux, on the south side of Paris. The Prussians were driven from the town and lost three hundred killed and one hundred prisoners.—The Gardes Mobile make sorties daily, and have succeeded in establishing communication between Forts Charenton and Ivry, on the southeast of the city. The Franco-tirailleurs have defeated the Prussians at Melun, on the Troyes Railroad, twenty-seven miles south of Paris, and occupy the town. A large force of the German army is in that vicinity, having been detached from the besiegers at Paris and the new corps which crossed the Rhine near Colmar in the march westward to join it.—The French have also concentrated a strong army to oppose the advance of the invaders on Tours and the south of France, and a great battle is imminent. The Prussians on entering the little town of Montdidier, in the Meurthe Department, demanded fifty thousand francs ransom and seized private citizens as hostages. As yesterday was the anniversary of the defeat of the first Napoleon by the Allies at Leipzig in 1813, it was generally understood that the bombardment of Paris would be commenced.

HEAVY GALE.—A great wind storm raged yesterday on the Lakes, and as far East as Augusta, Maine. Many vessels were wrecked, and property damaged to a large extent. Six lives are known to have been lost, and the number will probably be increased by further particulars. On Lakes Erie and Ontario the gale was very severe—and in Canada, also, much damage was done.

Robertson's Real Estate Journal says that it is "unknown even to many old residents of Virginia, that along the Eastern slopes of the Blue Ridge Mountains, there is a broad belt of land more secure from the biting frosts of Spring and Fall, than are the orange groves of Florida. 'The Green Belt' begins about 300 feet, vertical height, above the valleys, and traverses the mountains in a perfectly horizontal line throughout their entire length, like a vast green ribbon on a black ground. Its breadth is about 400 feet, (vertical height,) or wider according to the degree of the angle of the mountain with the plane of the horizon." It is added that this district is interested by the James River Canal; and the Virginia & Tennessee, and Orange & Alexandria Railroads, (in the counties of Bedford, Amherst and Nelson) run parallel with and near the base of these mountains, affording ready outlet to the markets of the world, for the productions of this favored region.

Many of the Virginia papers contain deserved tributes to the memory of the late Mr. Robert Ridgway. The Lynchburg News says that those who differed widely from him with respect to his political views, and who doubted the soundness of some of his political positions, never withheld from him the just credit of being a devoted and honest son of Virginia, and intent only upon advocating her cause, and promoting by the exercise of his best influence and utmost exertions the happiness and prosperity of her people.

A letter from Washington states that "an elaborate article just published by ex-Secretary Gideon Welles, charging ex-Secretary Seward with the responsibility of the failure to reinforce Fort Sumter, and Admiral Porter and Gen. Meigs (then Lieut. Porter and Captain Meigs) with being accessories of Mr. Seward, is so fortified with official documents as to have produced quite a sensation in army and navy quarters.

A Lee Monument Association has been formed by ex-Confederates at Lexington, Virginia, of which any ex-Confederate soldier may become a member by the payment of any sum from a dollar upwards. Gen. Early is President, and Col. Mosby one of the vice Presidents. The object is to raise money for the erection of a monument to Gen. Lee.

The anthracite coal trade rules nearly steady as to supply and demand, with a tendency to lower prices. For the more desirable qualities of prepared coal the orders from those in the trade are fully up to the supply, and in some instances in advance of the ability of shippers to meet.

It is reported that Brigham Young has ordered out the Nauvoo Legion for drill, Governor Sheffer's proclamation to the contrary notwithstanding. If this is so, we may look for warm times in Utah, as Governor Sheffer is determined to enforce the law.

It is one of the "reports" in Washington that Gen. Sickles is conducting important negotiations at Madrid with reference to the status of Cuba, and that they have direct reference to the acquisition of the island by the United States.

Col. Braxton, the Conservative Candidate for Congress, addressed the people of Fairfax at their Court House on Monday. His speech was an able one and was most favorably received. He speaks in Stafford to-day.

At the burning of the palace of St. Cloud near Paris, previously noticed, all the valuable pictures and tapestries there were destroyed. Who can estimate the amount of damage done in France since the present war began!

The yellow fever has broken out in Mobile; twenty deaths are reported in the last few days. The Relief Club appeal for aid. Deaths from yellow fever are reported daily in New Orleans.

The Tennessee Gazette says that many philosophical and many very satisfactory works have been written on memory, but none ever explained why some people almost always forget to pay their little bills due to newspapers.

The massive iron bridge across the Ohio river at Cincinnati has but a single span, and is one of the most beautiful and imposing structures in the country. It cost about eighteen hundred thousand dollars.

The Lynchburg News learns that "Rev. Dr. W. E. Munsey, has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Central Methodist Church, in Baltimore, and will at once enter his new field of labor."

An account of the proceedings of the Conservative meeting held at Liberty Hall, last night, will be found under the Local head. It was a large and enthusiastic meeting.

Human hair to the value of $5,895 was entered at the Boston custom house for the week ending October 7th, 1870.

The Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad is now open from Richmond to the White Sulphur Springs.

With the retirement of Mr. Cox but a single one of the entire array of cabinet officers originally appointed by General Grant now remains.

Mr. J. W. Forney is spoken of as Secretary of the Interior, to succeed Mr. Cox.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

"To show the very age and body of the Temer"

Yesterday a stranger entered the jewelry store of Thomas Kirkpatrick, Broadway, New York, several persons being in the store at the moment and the street before the door crowded. He snatched from the glass case a small velvet case, containing a cameo breast-pin and a set of earrings, all set in diamonds, and valued at $1,000. He rushed into the street with the package in his hand, but his theft was seen. He was pursued with cries of "Stop thief!" and was caught at the moment he threw the case into the street, where, it was immediately picked up.

The Washington Star states that the establishment of Chief Justice Chase in that city has been broken up and the furniture removed to his country seat near that place where he will reside during the coming winter. The Star says that the Chief Justice has been in very bad health for some time past but is now recovering, and it is hoped he will be entirely restored by the end of this year. His physicians, however, advise a retirement from active duties for two or three months.

Secretary Robeson has issued an order to Cashier Commander Truxton, U. S. Navy, commanding the U. S. ship of war James Watson, now at Honolulu. Commander Truxton's office was landing a company of armed marines on Hawaiian soil, taking possession of the U. S. consulate, and putting the flag at half mast in consequence of the death of the Queen Dowager.

A confidence operator is travelling New York city in the shape of a fair-haired flower girl of about ten years old. She is an orphan; her mother lately died, and has not been buried for want of money. This story brings stamps from otherwise uncharitable pockets, and she usually makes from $2 to $4 per day.

A construction train on the Toledo, Wabash and Western Railroad, having on board about forty laborers, ran over a cow near Vienna, Ill., last evening. Two men were instantly killed—two fatally wounded and several badly injured.

The Boston Custom House officials claim to have discovered smuggling transactions amounting to over a quarter of a million of dollars, and implicating several prominent merchants.

R. B. Gilliam, member elect to the present Congress, in the Raleigh district of North Carolina, died at his home in Oxford on Monday night.

It is expected that the Pope will soon dissolve the Ecumenical Council, on the ground that there is no place where it can be freely held.

The President of Liberia received a visit yesterday from a deputation of London merchants.

The French Provisional Government is desirous of making a postal treaty with the U. S.

To-day South Carolina elects a Governor and State officers and members of Congress.

VIRGINIA NEWS.

The conservative Convention of the Third District assembled yesterday and nominated Col. Albert Ordway for Congress, Judge Cox having declined. Col. Ordway was an officer of a Massachusetts regiment during the war, and first Provost Marshal of Richmond after the evacuation.

The Augusta Agricultural Fair commenced yesterday and considering the great destruction of property in the Valley of Virginia by the late flood, and the interruption of travel it is quite a success. There is a remarkably fine exhibition of cattle. Senator Thurman of Ohio, is announced to deliver the annual address to-day.

WASHINGTON ITEMS.—Mr. Wm. Kelly, an old citizen, died at the residence of his son-in-law, Thomas Barry yesterday.

The grand jury yesterday returned a true bill against Charles C. Edwies, charged with embezzlement of funds from the U. S. Treasurer's office. The grand jury have also found a true bill against James Grady, the man who outraged an old lady named Faulkner, causing her death.

Yesterday in the Equity Court, a decree was passed divorcing Jane D. Howland from the bonds of matrimony with David P. Howland, giving her authority to resume her maiden name, Cavanaugh. Also a decree of divorce in the case of Sarah Ann Johnson against John M. Johnson.

Last night, Wm. Soper, a car starter on the Seventh street railroad, committed suicide by swallowing a dose of laudanum.

Along the line of Pennsylvania avenue, from first to fifteenth streets, large gangs of workmen are engaged in tearing up the old cobble stone pavements, preparatory to putting down the new wooden pavement.

PROTECTION OF WILD FOWL.—In response to a public call there was a large meeting (numbering about one hundred) held at Raine's Hall last night, of persons interested in the protection of water fowl from wholesale slaughter, and ducking shores, &c., from trespassers, &c. The meeting was called to order by Mr. Augustus Wagner, who proposed that P. P. Pendleton, Esq., be elected president, which was adopted. Mr. Pendleton, in returning thanks, spoke of the great diminution in the numbers of wild fowl in our rivers since the introduction of sink boats, and the necessity of enforcing the existing laws to prevent their extermination. Arrangements, he understood, have been made at Havre de Grace for the shooting of ducks more extensively than ever. Many lands derive their principal value from their ducking privileges. He knew of a farm which rented for $650 per year, and the ducking privilege is leased for $600 per year. To protect all the interests involved requires that the amendment to the oyster police law of last session should be enforced, and the hands of the police force strengthened.—Balt. Sun.

Letter from Richmond.

(Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.)
RICHMOND, Oct. 18.—The committee of the Legislature appointed to attend the funeral of Gen. Lee have returned, and report that no definite answer as to the final resting place of the remains can yet be given, "though it is their settled conviction that no private consideration, and still less the claims, however great, of any institution, will be permitted to thwart the universal desire of the people and the many and manifest reasons which make it appropriate that the remains of the great Confederate hero should rest finally and forever in the Capital of his beloved State, and in the midst of the gallant soldiers whom he led so long and by whom he was loved so well."

In the Senate, to-day, the Superintendent of Public Buildings was directed to examine the Capitol and Governor's House and report what repairs are necessary.

Bills were introduced authorizing the city of Petersburg to borrow $300,000; authorizing counties containing 15,000 inhabitants to elect a separate Board of Supervisors; authorizing subscriptions on the part of the counties through which the Shenandoah Valley Railroad may pass, to that work, to construct a railroad and branches, and amending the act in relation to chain gangs—enforcing the law. A resolution providing for an adjournment of the Legislature on the 22d, went over under the rules.

Bills were introduced amending the code in reference to institutions for the deaf and dumb—making an annual appropriation of $40,000, to be paid by order of the Board of Visitors; and amending the act prescribing the duties and compensation of township officers; providing for deciding questions when there is a tie in the Board of Supervisors, by giving the casting vote to the Judge of the county.

The Senate bill to incorporate the Hillsboro' Water Company of Loudoun county, and the Senate bill incorporating the Norfolk and Portsmouth Steamship Company, were passed. The Senate bill amending the act prescribing the duties and compensation of county officers—authorizing the county Treasurers to receive taxes at the Court House, alone—was lost, so that that officer will, according to the present law, have to visit the different parts of his county and collect taxes.

A House bill providing a charter for the town of Front Royal was passed with an amendment striking out that section relieving the place from the road tax.

A petition of W. F. Broadus asking an appropriation of $2,000 for the education of children of deceased Virginia soldiers, was referred.

The bills reducing the tax on billiard tables and livery stables were laid on the table, with the understanding that they would be taken up and acted upon at the next session.

The bill appointing trustees for the town of Carrboro', in Prince George county, was ordered to be engrossed, as were the bills amending the act authorizing County Courts to borrow money, and amending the act for the reassessment of lands, &c.

A bill amending the tax law in reference to sample merchants, was introduced by Mr. Latham.

In the House of Delegates a motion to meet daily at 11 o'clock prevailed.

A bill authorizing a new registration in Shenandoah Iron Works township, Page county, the former list having been lost by the late flood, was passed.

Bills to protect the oyster beds in the waters of the State, and declaring certain portions of the Shenandoah river a lawful fence, were ordered to be engrossed.

The "road bill" was taken up, but after debate recommitted.

Among the bills, resolutions and petitions presented, were the following: For a reassessment of lands, &c.; extending and defining the boundaries of Lynchburg; relinquishing to the U. S. titles to certain lands, &c.; to repeal the fence law in Dranesville township, Fairfax county; amending certain sections of the tax law; inquiring into the expediency of doing away with county Judges in counties having less than 8,000 inhabitants; to prevent lottery and other games in accordance with the Constitution; in relation to fiduciaries; for the relief of the sureties of Wm. Dearmont, late Sheriff of Clarke county; perfecting the subscription of Page county to the stock of the Shenandoah Valley Railroad; amending the act prescribing the duties of township officers; consolidating railroad and transportation companies; removing the specific tax on manufactured whiskey.

The bill for the appointment of cattle inspectors was ordered to be engrossed, as was the bill amending the code in relation to manufactures at the Penitentiary.

It is understood that a caucus of the Conservative members of the General Assembly will be held within a few days for the purpose of recommending a suitable candidate for Congress from the State at large, and among the names proposed are Judge H. W. Thomas, of Fairfax, and Geo. W. Brent, of Alexandria.

Col. Albert Ordway has been nominated by the Conservatives of the district as their candidate for Congress. He was first U. S. Provost Marshal after the occupation of Richmond by the Federal troops. By his deportment and genial bearing he has made himself deservedly popular with the people of his adopted home, who thus show their appreciation of his merits. His competitor before the convention was Gen. J. E. Mulford, U. S. agent for exchange of prisoners. It is understood that Col. Ordway, who, by the way, married a former resident of Alexandria, will make a vigorous, and it is hoped, successful campaign. Mr. R. T. Daniel's name was mentioned, but he probably declined.

Letter from Lexington, Virginia.
(Correspondence of the Alexandria Gazette.)
LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 15.—Never has Lexington seen such a day as this, the funeral day of General R. E. Lee; a bright, glorious, autumn day, nothing in air or sky, to tell of sadness, and yet the solemn sabbath like stillness that reigns around tells that something unusual is going on, yet very unusual, for it can happen but once that such a funeral may take place. As announced before, the procession, in number about fifteen hundred, formed at 10 a. m. on the campus in front of Washington College, in the following order:

Music.
Escort of Honor, consisting of officers and soldiers of the U. S. A.
Chaplains and other clergy.
Hearse and Pall Bearers.
General Lee's horse.
The attending physicians.
Trustees and Faculty of Washington College.
Students of Washington College.
Thence the procession moved to the main street where they were joined by a delegation from the Legislature.
Alumni of Washington College.
Citizens.
Thence to the Military Institute, where they were joined by Faculty of V. M. Institute.
Cadets of V. M. Institute.

Thus completed the procession moved to the College Chapel, when the Students of the College, and the Cadets of the Institute were marched through the Chapel past the remains, and drawn up in two bodies on the South side of the Chapel, the rest of the procession then entered the building where the solemn burial service of the Episcopal Church was read by the Rev. Dr. Pendleton.

The interior of the Chapel was beautifully draped in black, and the metallic case that contained all that was mortal of the grand old hero, was literally buried in flowers, wreaths, crosses, &c., these together with the saddened expression on the multitude of faces all eagerly turned to the coffin as it to catch the very last glimpse, were calculated to make an impression never to be effaced. After the service the remains were moved into the vault made for the purpose in the floor of the library under the Chapel, the service to be used at the grave was read by the Chaplain standing on an eminence outside in order that all might take part in it. Before the benediction the congregation joined in singing the 144th hymn, and as those inside joined in these outside, and the solemn, the glorious words, "I'll never, never, never forsake," swelled up such a solemn and impressive scene we never witnessed, every man seemed to feel awed, and yet to feel as if to join with whole soul, was to render the last tribute to our departed hero. After the benediction, the large assemblage dispersed to their homes with heavy hearts, for this was not a funeral which was to be forgotten as soon as over.

Enclosed I send the action of Washington College, and of the V. M. I. The preamble to the Washington College resolutions was written by the Hon. John Randolph Tucker, the resolutions by Prof. E. S. Joyce.

Public Speaking at Fairfax C. H.
FAIRFAX C. H., Oct. 18.—A large outpouring of the people of this county took place here yesterday. It was the regular term day of the County Court, but there was little business of that kind done, the attraction being the expected speech of Maj. Braxton, the conservative candidate for Congress.

A 11 o'clock court adjourned and Judge Thomas introduced Maj. B. to the audience in a few very complimentary remarks, in which he denied, also, the charge of lukewarmness on his part, in the canvass, (as he heard had been intimated) on account of his own defeat before the convention. He expressed his entire devotion to the cause and the candidate, and invoked the hearty support of the people. The graceful manner of Judge T.'s acquiescence in the nomination where his own claims seemed paramount and the disappointment of his friends was so great—should not be forgotten.

Maj. Braxton, though suffering from hoarseness incurred in speaking, entertained the audience for an hour in a most animated and eloquent exposition of the principles of his party, and of the cruelty and tyranny of those who had built it up by their attempts to crush it. He was particularly happy in exposing the attempt, made by the Virginia carpet-baggers, upheld by the bayonets furnished by Congress, so to frame the Constitution as that no starving widow or infant child of a Southern man could fill the smallest office whereby to earn a pittance for their support, nor less so in showing the animus of the usurping party which had resulted in such a shameful waste of the public lands and money, and such a terrible imposition of taxes.

He then turned his attention to Mr. McKenzie, and we may truly say he annihilated that gentleman's pretensions to Conservative support, by a rehearsal of his past record and his testimony before the Reconstruction Committee. I will not attempt to give you his speech, as I understand he is to go before your people to-night, and he will speak for himself much more forcibly than I can. I can only invoke for him the hearing of those who may be wavering or undecided. They will not remain so.

At the end of an interesting, and rather dramatic sketch of the life of Nathaniel Bowditch, the Philadelphia Public Ledger has the following "moral."

"The long winter evenings are now closing upon us, and those young men who would not barely live out their days as merely eating, drinking and clothes-wearing animals, should give themselves some intellectual pursuit, and continue the education which is only commenced in the school room. All men cannot, of course, be like Franklin or Bowditch, leaders in science or other intellectual directions. But it is no mean ambition to strive to understand what master minds have done; and, though you cannot yourself rise to eminence, which is the prize of the few, at least be able to appreciate the eminent, which is the privilege of the many. But Bowditch, the cooper's son, taken from school at ten years of age, did not dream of his future celebrity. Follow then the wise path, and time will show where it will lead you."

VOTING.—At the last session of Congress, an act was passed by which such supervisory control is asserted by the general Government over elections throughout the country, as really to entirely set aside and override State authority. Under the pretence of a desire to prevent frauds at all elections, State and National, not only is a power of the supervision of all registers and election returns given to the U. S. Courts, Marshals and deputies, but authority is also vested in the U. S. Marshals empowering them to call out, if necessary, the military and naval forces of the country, to assist in the enforcement of the new law. Thus, under the bald pretence of preventing illegal voting and of enforcing the rights of the newly made freed citizens, a new element is thrown into the elections of this country, the polls are put under surveillance military despotism.—Balt. Gazette.

WEATHER WARNINGS.—The British Board of Trade has published, for the benefit of seafaring men, the following remarks on the appearance of the sky: A rose sunset presages fair weather, and a bright yellowish pink in the evening indicates wind, and a pale yellow wet weather. A neutral gray is a favorable sign in the evening, and an unfavorable one in the morning. If the tops of the clouds are soft, undefined and feathery, the weather will be fine; but if the edges are hard, sharp and well-defined, it will be foul. Any deep, unusual lines bounding the clouds between wind or rain, will quiet and delicate tints bespeak fair weather.

TEXAS CATTLE.—Our Delegate, Mr. Glascock, has submitted a bill to the Legislature for the prevention of the Texas cattle disease in future, by limiting the time for their introduction within the State to periods between the 1st of November and the 10th of the following March, and authorizing the County Courts to appoint a board of cattle inspectors specially charged with the execution of the law.

We regret to learn from a worthy citizen of Upper Fauquier that the Texas cattle disease has recently broken out in the neighborhood of Upperville.—Warrenton Index.

Yesterday witnessed the close of the Prison Reform Congress in Cincinnati which has continued its session for an entire week without the least abatement of the interest with which it started.
